That one is from Lady Jaset Stepacy, I know—beggling, of cears, for her orphans or carates or indigent mothers; that's from Berile Stanleope—what a niggls he writes—sad, oh, this must be what they call a typowritten thing."

Lady Evenham picked from the scattered pile a common square envelope bearing an east out postniork and addressed in typo to "The Visconat Evenham, Evenham House, Park Lane."

"How queer it seems that a nanchine should write all that so straight and next! I had no iden It looked so tidy out insulnessible. I think fill make John bay me one to write to my dress and the standard of the st

She scratinised the letters still closer. "This one lan't quite funitiess, though. There's something wreng with the capital E. It'n got n while spot—Ah, John, at last!"
She dropped the letters among the others and ran to greet her husband, who stooped from his superior height said kissed her levingly.

A year ngo society had called John, Viscoant Evesham, aged 45, a fool to saddlo his wealth and his freedom with a nere girl as a wife, bat his bride had been so sweet, se gracious, so innocently pleased with her new surroundings and so annifected that at the beginning of this her socond season the most cynical had voted the marriage a success and line young viscoanters an acquisition.

Loril Evesham adored his wife, yet with that tentotive worship, that here tinged with doubl, which must always be where the adorer is speeding swiftly down life's hill and the object of ndoration is every day growing more lovely ond more desirable.

His first few months of unreled life, when, n bride, Lady Evesham had won widesproad and open admiration, had been tentro to him. Even now his self depredatory doubte were only lalled to stander by the perfectly hismeless conduct of his wife.

"I'm sorry to have kept you waiting, my deer," he began, with old fashloned contresy, "hat the morning was so fine I made sure you would prelong your ride."

"So I might have done, for Mr.

Leighton—he lins constituted himself my cavaliere cervania in the Row—was most amasing, but Kittie Hamer joined ns, and it's horrid riding three abreast -onn has to shout re. I left them at the top of the Rew nud"—

Buildenly he started, grow pale, then red, looked from his wife to a slip of paper in his kend and back ugain.

What a strange coincidence!

"Watch your wife?" in typowrillen characters, stared from the paper before him. Opposite was the dewreost face of his wife—the face which had been but a moment back dyed with a gulity blash at the chance mention of the name of a mere acquaintance.

The next moment he gathered up his letters and left the room. Lady Evesham, too, sprang from her chair.

"Why was I such a fool?" she cried to hervelf in a tall mirror. "What made use do such a hatefal, stapid, underbred thing as to hiash like n gawky school-girl—mid at llupert Leighton's name, too!—a man who —" She did not speech the words that ross to har lips. Only the loint, coquettish smile—the suilin of a women who is beautiful, who is ilaitered, who is belowed—dawned again in the mishy depths of her oves.

Before Lord Evesham's cyes and in his cars were aver the words, "Watch your wife?" A younger mae, onn surer of his hold npon a woman's heart, would have shown her the simmeful thing. But he was afraid. He tried to keep the harden of don't and disbellef to himself, yet leafir is Evesham guessed at its existence, though she knew neither its origin nor reason. Lady Evesham siept little that night. Her shuttered faith in her hasband's loyalty mut trust, felighted's love, her own unhappiness, jestled in her brain the weary hears through, and it was a very ghost of Lady Evesham who sipped her checolate nest norming and broke the seats of hist a dozen letters.

Sodiently the blood rushed to her pala face. A common envelope, learing a typewritten address, quivered in one hand; a silp of paper was in the other.

"If you would have a proof, be luroom 3 at the imperial cafe today at 4 o'clock."

"No signstare, an address," cried Bestria Evesham. "Bat the envelope is eneagh. The E's are broken like those an that other letter which came five weeks ago. Ah is who can be so base, so wicked, as to wish to wanionly destroy the happlaces of twa lives?"

The hig clock over the imperial cafe had larely struck foar when a woman, whose perfect tollet was marred by the singular thickness of her veil, gilded into the dourway, and searcely had the lady disappeared when Lord Evesham passed into the habling and followed in the fair one's foolsteps.

Ills lordship neoved quickly, but in spite of his efforts only arrived in the corridor in time to hear the shorp click of a closing door, followed by an osciamelien in a voice he knew too well.

The sound came from room No. 3. Lord Evesham looked around. Lunchcons were over, dinner not yet began. Ill was alone, and in anoibes second was pressing his eye to the keyhole.

"You here, Mr. Leighton!"

It was the voice of Lady Evesham, and before her question could be answered she displayed her surprise and disfavor in bitter toaca. She continued:

"I understand all now. A light breaks in npon me. It is you—you—a goullamin, a friend, who sent the letter to my husband wide has nearly broken his heart and wreeked my life—you who have woron in them to two letters to my husband's hoass. SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

A Nevel Fire Nessle-Even the Inventor Cuanot Exploit the Arline.

A now nozzle for fire hose, which the inventors claim will so spread a stream of water that it will be lwice as effective as a solid stream, was eshibited, lately in New York. The invention is known as a "ball nozzle" and ien remarkable contrivancea. It is cloimed that men of science to whom it has been sabmitted are unable to give any seplanation of the way in which the ball in the nezzle acts. Commenting upon it, the Naw York Son says:

Briefly, the nossle is almost esactly the same in construction as the ordinary one now in me in oer fire department. The only difference is that the end is shaped like a bell, and in this bell is pieced a ball of solid polished rabber. The ball is loose, and there is nothing to held it in position except n one would inagine that the farce of water would drive the hall out of the bell like a shot from a canaoa. On the contrary, however, it holds it in, and the more pressure tarned on the more secure is the ball in the bell. The ball does not stick tightly against the nutlet, but is held af a distance from it of about a quarter of an luch.

The flow is not in any way releaded

Even when the stream is turned on full force the ball did nef come nearer them a quarier of an inch of the brass guard. It kept revolving rapidly, which mystified the firemen the more, and daanfoanded a namber of hydraulic engineers who were present and who made n carefal osmination of the contrivance.

A better opportanity of studying the principle of the thing was given to the visitors by meons of a number of little tubes which lined the walls of the reom. The tubes projected some inches from the wall, and in tromendous force of wiad was kept circulating through them. A piece of paper put within un luch of the tabe would be blown half across the room by the force of the wiad, yet if piaced fint ngainst ihe tube it would remain there as snagly as though there was not a porfect gale of whal blowing against it. The same result was obtained from the use of n small ball. The ball, if placed against the lole, remained there as theagh there was nuclead from the use of n small ball. The ball, if placed against the wind, yet if placed within half no inch the wind, but if placed within half no inch the wind, but if placed within half no inch the wind blow it across the room.

The Parent of the Hoopshirt.

The farthingale, the parent of the inter day hoopshirt, was born under Franceis I about 1530 and marked the end of the middle ages more completely than any political change. The forthingale was first called "hochepils."

This name was given to n round wad, which was suspended from the whist by a skeleton of steel wires, to give amplitude to the dresses. Then the name estended to n system of hoops of ratten or whalebone.

The misers of CRIPPLE CREEK are sure to make a great (stay mea wealthy this year. The district is now producing assity $1,000,000 per meath. Mr. Stratton, who, two years ago was working at his trade as carpester, is new taking $1,000 per day out of his ladependence miss and has relused $1,000,000 for his property. Of course you cannot get an interest in Mr. Stratton's nine or say other mine like it. Such stocks are not for sale. Your only chance is to get an interest in some good mine that is not producing at present, but whose prospects are brilliant. Such as opportunity we offer you in the Eclipse Mining and Milling Co. They now seven full lode claims and a placer ground of one hundred acres, all located at CRIPPLE CREEK, COL. Their ontook is very encoraging ladeed. Mines that are now MEDARYAN did not show up as well at the same stage of development. We must raise some mosey, ond effer a limited amental of stock at 12 cants on the dollar, or 12 cents per share.

The Diversity Cinb.

A unique clab has existed for six or seven years in Boston and has not only existed, but grown and flourished. It is called the Diversity olds. It includes all the women employed in the Congregations i found, from Miss Dyer, who edits the home department of The Congregationalist, down in the amallest typeseties. It has about 40 naumbers. It holds foar meetlags a year, at which gnests are present and a regular programme is carried out, with papers and addresses. This olub has nut only been a source of delight to its members, hat has been found most useful in promoting mutual acquaintance and a feeling of fraternity and solidarity. These hives are an andoathed convenience during the packing season and while opening ap in the spring. The rest of the year most of them are a decided unisance, for the simple reason that the nore detail there is to anything the harder it is to handle.

These two bives are not patented, and can therefore be made by anybody, but by no means overybody can make them properly. The Simplicity sent out by any dealer in such goods has halved and mitered corners, so they may be unlied from both ways and drawn very tighely together. These corners, if put fouged ir rightly and kept painted, should be insolately weather tight—almost an impossible condition to scence in the home made square joint live.

The dovedailed hive has even tighter corners than the Simplicity will have after a summer's campalgu in the betaun, the lock joints holding them in place as mills alone cannot. This is the until difference between these two lead-

Silk is more worn than ever this season, and the black plain and fancy silks come as a boon and blessing to women whose luceness are smaller than their desires, for a good silk in, in the end, always an economy.

Silk has never been anore defily treated by the weavers than this senson. Never has glace been of better quality than now, when it is brought out almost as thick as breeate. Blue and black shot glaces are one of the new modes and make up well with checked crepon.

Chiacs and all kindn of glaces are the dominant features in silks. They are shot and striped, some on dark grounds, some on light, and are extensively ased for bloases. Half lich stripes are fashiomable for slevers.

For infectas in plabla and a liberal mixiare of colors, such as black, light marker, light plak and green, there is a great demand.

We are coming back to turned down muslin collar and caffs which were worn 30 and 40 years ago. They figure on the innumerable silk bloases, some of which have the iriule plaits formed with black satin, but it is hardly necessary now to besiow any very choorate trimuling on this sort of bodices, for large and fascinating cape collars in moslin and lace are ready for wearing with them, as well as all the tacked and lace edged collars and caffs, small in proportion, which irin them without any trouble at all, and, moreover, admit of my amount of variety.

This miners of CRIPPLE CREEK are sure to make a great many men wealthy this year. The district is now producing nearly $1,000,000 per month. Mr. Stratton, who, two years ago was working at his trada as carpenter, is now taking $1,000 per day out of his Independence mine and has refused $1,000,000 for his property. Of course you cannot get an interest in Mr. Stratton's mine or any other mine like it. Such stocks are not for sole. Your only chance is to get an interest in some good mine that is not producing at present, but whose prespects are hrilliant. Such an opportunity we offer you in the Eclipan Mining and Milling Co. They own seven fall lode olaims and a placer ground of one hundred acres, all located at CRIPPLE CREEK, COL. Their outlook is very encouraging indeed. Miner that are now BORANZ AN did not show up as well at the same stage of development. We must raise some money, and offer a limited amount of stock at 12 cents on the dollar, or 12 cents per share.

This stock is absolutely non-assessuble. You will never be asked to pay another cent on it. They are liable to make a strike at any moment, when, of course, the atock will in mediately go up. We, therefore, do not vousider ourselves bound by this offer for u-ore than ten days after its last appearance.

Stock will be forwarded immediately upon receipt of maney.

The Cost of a Newspaper.

The year just passed has been the hardest one upon the measpapers that they have experienced since 1822, asys the Press and Priater. Very few newspapers have gained in circulatioe, and most have lost very heavily. About one-half of the newspapers and other publications in the United States have decreased in also the past year. The number that have suspended publication is not definitely known, but it is known that owing to decreased size and saspensions, there is 40 per cent less white paper of the near class mad than was the case one year ago. The number of newspapers published in the United States is 10 per cent less than in 1883, the first year in twenty-five thet years that the statistics have shown a decrease. In New York state alour, 275 newspapers anspended publication in 1883, and it is said that the year at least 350 more a ill join the great majority. These figures are compiled from authoritistive reports and are not guess work. Of course many neaspapers have started, but the number so starting has been far less than the number that has died.

There was a time when a good the sapaper could be published for from $150 to $200 per week. That day is gens by.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS.

Among Central Fack Monkey Folk.

The Bandor-log, as Mr. Kipling calls the monkey folk, bind a drendfal time in Contral park not long ago and all because of a little mirror. Hut then a mirror has been known to raise no end of froablu among real ituman folks. As the New York World toils the tale, a wicked person handed the mirror to a larga monkey known as Dicko. The mirror was about 4 fuehes in diameter. Dicko took it, grinned, scowled anyagnly and then knocked that ngly monkey in the frama clear across the cage.

A small black unnkey picked ap the glass. He gazed at binself, and so did half a dozen other monkeys over his shoulder.

Dicko modo a dash and sustehed the mirror, wherenpon overy other monkey leaped apou him, and such a squeallag, snapping, twisting mass of monkeys was nover seen. The keeper found the inquisitive monkays trying to eat the inquisitive monkays trying to eat the inquisitive. He entered the eago and fonght with tham to take the glass nway. It was all fan for the spectators, particularly one man, outil hu was arrested for furntaining the mirror.

Slipping the Pedal.

Slipping the pedal is an ngly bicycle accident, as it generally takes place at high speed and may result in an ugly amash. Golden Days says there are various causes, the first and foremost leing its fack of proper ankle action. Too long cranks are also apt to give insecure hold when traveling at apeed. Wrong position of the saddle is another cause. If it is placed too far forward or tilted too much downward, the weight of the bedals, and instead of the light, persuasive movement of the foot that drives the pedal around swiftly and safely the notion foccurse, jecky and bregalar, and the foot libs off jost when it is anost desirable that it should atay on.

The minors of CREPPLE CREEK are aura to make a great meny men wealthy like year. The district is now producing aserty $1,000,000 per month. Mr Stratton, who, two years agu was working at his trade as carpeater, is now taking $1,000 per day out of his independence mino and has refused $1,000,000 for bis property. Of course yen cannet got an interest in Mr. Strattoo's mine or any other mina fits it. Such stocks are not fer asis. Your only chance is to get an interest to some good mine that le not producing at pressot, but whose prespects are brilliaut. Such an opportunity was offer you in the Eclipse Mining and Milling Co. They own seven full lock claims and a placer ground of one headred acres, all located at CRIPPLE CREEK, COL. Their outlook is roty ancouraging indeed. Mines that are now ECRANZAN did not abow ap as well at the same stage of davelopment. We must raise seme money, and effer a limited amount of atock at 12 conts on the dollar, or 12 cents per charu.

This stock is absolutely non-assessable. You will never be asked to pay another cent on it. They are liable to make a strike at any moment, when, of course, the stock will immediately go up. We, therefore, do not consider ourselves bound by this offer for more than ten days after its last appearance.

Stock will be forwarded immediately upon receipt of money. We refer to Union National Bank, Denver, as to our reliability. Hemilitanes only be made to above bank or to os direct.
